Spend some time with a person who can't speak or hear properly. If the silence between you and him push you to do something for that person, obviously you should take some step. And this will begin only after choosing the right career. You have to become a certified audiologist or speech language pathologist to help such people in our society.

As you have already decided what you want to pursue as your mainstream career, the next challenge will be of determining the right college for you. Many students come across a lot of colleges but end up being confused at the end.
